Brandt Survives Ouster Attempt by Two Votes

By David Binder

BONN, April 27 (NYT) - West Germany'e governing coalition heat back today an attempt by the powerful conservative opposition to topple Chancellor Willy Brandt and supplant him with Rainer

The Christian Democratic Union and its Bayarian ally the Christian Social Union, got 247 votes for its Bundestag no-confidence vote against Mr. Brandt two short of the required absolute majority in the 496-member lower house of parliament.

A tumult broke out in the Bundestag when the tally was prematurely disclosed at 1:12 pm. Deputies of the governing coalition of Social Democrats and Free Democrats should in triumph and embraced each other:

They surrounded Chancellor Brandt and some tried to hoist him to their shoulders. Their cheers soon turned to jeers and fist-shaking at the opposition. Mr. Barzel slumped in his cent facing the cabinet benches, shaking his head in dejection, his cheeks drained

Not until the Bundestag president, Kni Uwe von Hassel, announced the official result of the balloting seven minutes later did Mr. Barzel pull himself together and go to shake hands with the

All across Germany citizens demonstrated with joy over the vote, dancing in the streets, kissing strangers, honking autom lie horns.

The vote gave the 30-month-old coalition a new lease on life and the possibility of pushing through its program of ratifying its controversial 1970 goodwill treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland in parliament next week.

But it was unclear tonight how long the lease would last, Two coalition deputies from the Free Democratic party, Gerhard Klenbaum and Knut von Kühlmann-Stumm, announced that they had voted for Mr. Barzel and said they intended to resign their mandates. A third Free Democratic fence-jumper, Wilhelm Heims, hinted that he might have abstalled teday but would vote for the Eastern detente treaties. This left the coalition led by Mr. Brandt and his Foreign Minister, Walter Scheel of the Free Democratic party, in coubt whether it still possesses the 249 rotes needed to govern For this reason the government decided to delay a second critical Bundestag vote tonight, a hallot on the federal budget. It would have laid bare the number of deputies still supporting the coalition Against bitter objections by Mr. Barzel, the government adopted fillibustering tactics, on the apparent assumption that there would he more clarity about the vote strengths after the coalition parties had conferred once more with potential waverers in the ranks. Throughout the late afternoon and evening there was talk here new elections, a difficult maneuver under the 1949 federal constitution and one that appears to require the backing of all porties,

Many leading conservative politicians said they would like new elections. Mr. Barrel himself appeared hesitant, possibly because of the defeat he suffered today. The government parties, emberant over their hardrendth occups, were obviously unwilling to take up at this moment the imprecidented matter of new elections falling within their regime's normal four-year term.

Should a striemate develop in the Bundesteg, the most likely time for interim elections would be in mid-June, before the great vacation wave starts in Welt Germany.

Few would be happy about such a decision. Chancellor Eranat prefers to push through ratification of his Eastern treates. Mr. Barzel knows that the poils already count him a loser in interim The electorate is tired of election slopung after two months of being homberded, countrivide, with nornings and appeals connected with last Sunday's state vote in Baden-Whittembore. The Bundestag vote on whether to replace the government-(Continued on Page 3, Col. 6)

Foresees Gains at Peace Talks

Nixon to Continue Bombings While Withdrawing More GIs

By Robert B. Semple Jr. WASHINGTON, April 27 (NYT).—President Nixon said last night that he was continuing his troop withdrawal program despite the heavy enemy offensive in South Vietnam, In a nationwide television address, Mr. Nixon announced that 20,000 more troops would be with-drawn from South Victuam, a more that would reduce authorized American troop scrength to 49,000 by July 1, While scher and earnest in his presentation before the cameras, the President sounded a generally optimistic note about the military situation in Vietnam, and, without going into detail, he also said that he was approaching today's resumption of the Paris peace talks with considerable hope. Mr. Nixon said that he had received yesterday morning an evaluation of the fighting from his commander in Vietnam Creighton W. Abrams-and that Gen. Abrams was convinced that, despite four weeks of bitter fighting, the South Vietnamese could contain the invasion "if we continue to provide air and sea support." The President pleaged to continne such support and to persist with air and naval attacks enemy installations in North Viet-

On the diplomatic front, Mr. Nixon offered no new negotiating proposals, asserting that the United States had already offered generous terms for peace. But he said that, despite the enemy's refusal to accept these terms, or even talk seriously about them, he was approaching today's hargaining session "with the firm expectation that productive talks leading to rapid progress will follow through all available chan-

Bickering Resumes at Paris Talks

At the 143th formal semi-public negotiating session today, delegates made no mention of secret talks. It was their first meeting since President Nixon ended his unilateral suspension of the talks announced March 23

The tenor of the talks was all but indistinguishable from that prevailing before the suspension except for accusations and courter-accusations involving the Communist offensive in South Victnom, which occurred during the interruption. American Amhassador William J. Parter set the mood by complaining to newsmen after the session that the Communists had produced "absolute bollerplate," that is, statements irrelevant to

Still Candidate at Convention

Muskie Quits Active Campaigning

WASHINGTON April 27 (IHT).-Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D., Maine, today withdrew as a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in the remaining state primaries. But he declared that he would still be a candidate for the nomination at the convention in July. In a nationally televised press conference, Sen. Muskie blamed lack of funds for his withdrawal. "I do so with regret," he said, "but I have no choice. I do not have the money to continue." Sen. Muskie, who. before tha primaries began, was a heavy favorite to become the Democratcandidate, released the 128 delegates he had won so far so that "they should feel free to reassess their commitment." However, he added, "At the urging of friends and supporters around tha country, I do not withdraw my candidacy."

Name on Ballots Sen. Muskie told newsmen that even though he would not campaign, his name would remain on the ballot in several primaries. The senator's move came after two months of poor showings in various state contests climaved by defeats in the Massachusetts and Pennsylvania primaries. It leaves Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Actors, playwrights and directors forming the group demanded that the state-controlled union use its influence to gain provisional liberty for actress Julia Pena. She was arrested Monday between performances of Aristophanes' "Lysistrata" at a Madrid theater and subsequently charged with sedition-a courtmartial offense.

Miss Pena has been accused by police of having put her apartment at the disposal of a clandestine construction workers' strike committee last Saturday.

dress to the nation:

During the past three weeks

you have been reading and hearing about the massive invasion of South Vietnam by the Com-munist armles of North Vletnam. Tonight. I want to give you a first-hand report on the military situation in Vietnam, the decisions I have made with regard to the role of the United States forces in the conflict, and the efforts we are making to bring peace at the negotiating table. Let me begin by briefly reviewing what the situation was when I look office, and what we have done since them to end

American involvement in the war and to bring peace to the longsuffering people of Southcast

On Jan. 20, 1969, the American troop ceiling in Vietnam was 549,000. Our casualties were Our casualties were running as high as 300 a week. Thirty thousand young Amerleans were being drafted every Today, 39 months later, through our program of Vietnamization -helping the South Vietnamese develop the capability of defending themselves—the number of Americans in Vietnam by May ist will have been reduced to 69,000. Our casualtles-even during the present, all-out enemy offensive-have been reduced by 95 percent. Draft calls now average fewer than 5.000 men a month, and we expect to bring them to zero next year.

Generous Terms

As I reported in my television address to the nation on Jan. 25. we have offered the most generous peace terms in both public and private negotiating sessions. Our most recent proposal provided for an immediate cease-fire; the exchange of all prisoners of war; the withdrawal of all of our forces within six months; and new elections in Vietnam, which would be internationally supervised, with all political elements including the Communists particlpating in and helping to run the elections. One month before such elections. President Thieu and Vice-President Huong would resign. Now Hanol's answer to this offer was a relusal even to discuss our proposals and, at the same time, a massive escalation of their military activities on the battlefield. Last October, the same month when we made this peace offer to Hanoi, our inteligence reports began to indicale that the energy was building up for a major attack. Yet we deliberately refrained from responding militarily. Instead we patiently continued with the Paris talks, because we wanted to give the enemy every chance to reach a negotiated settlement at the bargaining table rather than to seek a military victory on the battlefield—a victory they cannot be allowed to

The facts are cleor. More than 120,000 North Vietnamese are now fighting in the South. There are no South Vletnamese troops any where in North Vletnam. Twelve of North Victnam's 13 regular combat divisians have now left their own soit in order to carry aggressive war onto the territory their neighbors. Whatever pretext there was of a civil war in South Vietnam has now becu stripped away.

What we are witnessing herewhat is being brutally inflicted upon the people of South Victnam-is a clear case of naked and unprovoked aggression across an international border. There is only one word for it: invasion,

This massive attack has been resisted on the ground entirely by South Vletnamese forces, and in one area by South Koreau forces. There are no United States ground troops involved. None will be involved. To support this defensive effort by the South Vietnamese I have ordered attacks on enemy military targets in both North and South Vietnam by the sir and naral forces of the United

Abrams' Report

I have before me a report which I received this morning from Genera! Abrams. He gives the following evaluation of the situation:

1. The South Vietnamese are fighting courageously and well in their self-defense, and inflicting very heavy casualties on the invading force, which has not gained the easy victory some predicted for it three weeks ago.

2. Our air strikes have been essential in protecting our own remaining forces and in assisting the South Vietnamese in their efforts to protect their homes and their country from a Communist takeover.

3. Gen. Abrams predicts that there will be several more weeks of very hard lighting in which some battles will be lost ond others will be won by the South Vietnamese. But he is convinced that, if we continue to provide air and sea support, the enemy will fall in its desperate gamble to impose a Communist regime on South Vietnam, and that the South Vietnamese will theu have demonstrated their ability to defend themselves on the ground against future enemy attacks.

Three Decisions

Based on this realistic assessment from Gen. Abrams, and after consultation with President Thleu, Ambassador Bunker, Ambassador Porter, and my senior adrisers in Washington, I have three decl-sions to announce tonight.

First. I have decided that Vietnamization has proved itself sufficiently that we can continue our program of withdrawing American forces without detriment to our overall goal of ensuring South Vietnam's survival as an inde-pendent country. Consequently, I am announcing tonight that Finally, three weeks ago, on Easter weekend, they mounted their invasion of South Vietnam. Three North Vietnamese divisions slom has the full approval of Gen President Thieu and of Gen. Abrams. It will bring our troop celling down to 49,000 by July 1 -a reduction of half a million men since this administration came into Office.

Second, I have directed Ambassador Porter to return to the negotiating table in Paris tomorrow, but with one very special purpose in mind. We are not resuming the Paris talks simply In order to hear more empty oropaganda and bombast from the North Vietnamese and Vlet Cong delegates, but to get on with the constructive business of making rapid progress will follow through all available channels. As far as we are concerned, the first order of business will be to get the enemy to halt his invasion of South Vietnam, and to return the American prisoners of war. Finally, I have ordered that our air and naval attacks on military installations in North Vietnam be continued until the North Vietnamese stop their offensive in South Vietnam. I have flatly rejected the pro-posal that we stop the bombing of North Vietnam as a condition for returning to the negotiating table. They sold that package to the United States once before, in 1968, and we are not going to buy it again in 1972.

The Record

Look at the record. By July 1 we will have withdrawn over 90 percent of our forces that were in Vietnam In 1969. Before the enemy's invasion began, we had cut our air sortles in half. We have offered exceedingly generous terms for peace. The only thing that we have refused in do is to accede to the enemy's demand to overthrow the lawfully constituted government of South Vietnam and to impose a Communist dictatorship in its place.

As you will recall, I have warned on a number of occasions over the past three years that if the enemy responded to our efforts to bring peace by stepping up the war I would act to meet that attack, for three reasons: to protect our remaining Amerlcan forces, to permit continuation of our withdrawal program, and to prevent the imposition of a Communist regime on the people of South Vietnam against their will, with the inevitable bloodbath that would follow for hundreds of thousends who have dared to oppose Communist aggression. But if on the other hand, Communist aggression fails in Vietnam it will be discouraged elsewhere, and the chance for peace will be increased.

The air and naval strikes of reto achieve these objectives. They have been directed only against military targets supporting the invasion of the South. They will not stop until that invasion stops. The Communists have failed in their efforts to win over the people of South Vietnam politically. General Abrams believes that they will fail in their efforts to conquer South Vietnam militarily. Their one remaining hope is to win in the Congress of the United States, and among the people of the United States. the victory they cannot win among the people of South Vietnam or on the battlefield in South Vietnam.

The Stakes

The great question then is how we, the American people, will respond to this final challenge. Let us look at what the stakes -not just for South Vletnam but for the United States and for the cause of peace in the world. one country, armed with the most modern weapons by major powers, can invade another nation and succeed in conquering 1t, other countries will be encouraged to do exactly the same thingin the Mideast, in Europe, and in other international danger spots. If the Communists win militarily in Vietnam, the risk of war in other parts of the world would be enormously increased. We aren't trying to conquer North Vietnam or any other country. We want no territory. We seek no bases. We have offered the most generous peace termspeace with honor for both sideswith South Vletnam and North Vietnam each respecting the

But as we come to the end of this long and difficult struggle, we must be steadfast. We must not falter. For all that we have risked and all that we have gained over the years now hangs in the balance during the coming weeks and months. If we now let dnwn nur friends, we shall surely be letting down ourselves and our future as well. If we now persist, history will thank America for her courage and her vision peace Next month I shall travel to Moscow on what I hope will also be a journey for peace. In the 18 countries I have visited as President I have found great respect for the office of President of the United States, I have reason to expect, based on Dr. Kissinger's report, that I shall find the same respect for the presidency when I visit this office in the years ahead. But I do know that future Presidents will travel to nations abroad on journeys for peace as I have. If the United States betrays the millions of people who have relied on us in Vietnam, the President of the United States, whoever he is, will not deserve nor receive the respect which is essential if the United States is to continue to play the great role we are destined to play, of helping to build a new structure of peace in the world. It would amount to a renunciation of our morality, an abdication of our leadership among nations, and an invitation for the mighty to prey upon the weak all around the world. It would be to deny peace the chance peace deserves to have. This we shall never do.

The two sides are reportedly very close to agreement on the numbers of defensive missles each side will be able to retain—estimated at between 150 and 200.

Mr. Kissinger and Mr. Brezhnev also discussed a possible increase in trade between the two countries. While Mr. Kissinger was in Moscow, a high-level U.S. delegation was also there.

The erithmetic of the vote-247 votes for Mr. Barzel, 10 GERMAN JOY-West German Chancellor Willy Brandt (center) being congratulated against and three abstentions—makes this plain. Two Free Democrats sald they had voted for him. This meant that not all of the conservative opposition's 246 members did support Mr.

The question in many minds here tonight was whether Mr. Barzel could count on the future support of the conservatives who abandoned him today.

Franz Josef Strauss, no friend of Mr. Barzel although his publicly sworn ally, was virtually the only conservative who left the Bundestag hall laughing today. Last night on television he had mocked The New York Times for suggesting that he had participated in a plot to ruin Mr. Barzel by holding back one or two key conservative votes. Today he told a reporter that the paper had not erred as often as he had

Government circles reported today that they know of at least three more coalition deputies voting for Mr. Barzel after secret agreements with the opposition conservatives. This would mean that more conservatives defected. ## 'Through a Glass, Darkly' under more unusual auspices than those which attended the reopening of the Paris talks. The North Vietnamese offensive, their biggest of the war, was still rolling on: President Nixon had announced he would continue the bombing of the North. An end to both of these had once been preconditions for resuming the Paris discussions—yet the delegates met. The other side is at flood tide-yet Mr. Nixon is drawing out 20,000 more American troops. What did the Russlans (or the North Vietnamese) say to Mr. Kissinger that invested his press conference with optimism? What effect has the presidential election campaign upon the decisions made in Washington, or Hanoi?

In a paraphrase of the King James Version, the military, in the National Security Study Memorandum-1, prepared in 1969, commented: "As far as our knowledge of how Hanoi thinks and feels, we see through the glass darkly, if at all." That is still true, for the public at large, at least. It is true about the military prospects on the battlefields, about the effects of continued bombing of the North, there and in the United States; about the political auguries domestically and the diplomatic anguries internationally. And, in spite of Mr. Nixon's apparently clear statement Wednesday night, it is true about the precise intentions of the administration.

Nevertheless, the four delegations have met again in Paris-admittedly to exchange polemics at first, but in any event they are talking. And if it is still very far from clear that anything new will emerge from discusalons undertaken under such uncertain con-

Seldom has a peace conference convened ditions, and if the Vietnamese are dying at a tragic rate while the negotiators orate, there is more hope in the talking than in

> A consensus in the United States holds that the President's latest television appearance was directed, in substance as well as in appearance, to the American people. He urged them, in effect, to have confidence in South Vletnam's ability to resist, and in his own ability to extricate the United States from the war. There is also a growing belief that the North Vietnamese almed their offensive at the same address, seeking to convince Americans that Vietnamization would not work, and that Mr. Nixon should be voted out of office or his powers curtailed by Congress unless he complied with Hanoi's terms for a settlement.

It is possible to debate, endlessly, the moralities and immoralities involved in these two positions. Many Americans are repelled by the effects of Vietnamization and the continued American involvement it implies. Many others, however, will consider that the continued withdrawal of U.S. ground troops and the return to the table at Paris constitutes real progress toward the goal virtnally all Americans ardently desire: an end of their participation in this struggle so costly in lives and treasure. The North Vietnamese. therefore, cannot coont on the revulsion of those committed to immediate peace to aifect Mr. Nixon's policies, either by act of Congress or by their ballots in November. This should provide a pragmatic incentive to them to modify their positions in Paris, and moderate the killings in Vietnam.

The Violent Minority

A small minority of students at Columbia, Harvard, Stanford and a few other universitles have arrogated to themselves coercive powers which the majority on these campuses clearly does not wish them to exercise.

At Columbia, a small band without the legitlmacy of any constituency defied fellowstudents, professors, administrators and the courts by forcefully and illegally blocking aceess to academic buildings. When university security forces had to he augmented by police, it was the students who first resorted to violence. Although the use of nightsticks is always distasteful on any college campus, the fact that more injuries were sustained by police officers than by students speaks for Itself.

In the vain effort to recapture their lost leadership position, the disrupters had sought to ride to power on their fellow-students' revulsion against President Nixon's current Vietnam policy. But violent disruption, always reprehensible in a university setting, is totally indefensible under existing circumstances. Present realities were symbolized by the recent statement of the presidents of the Ivy League colleges, condemning the bombing of North Vietnam and calling for an end of the war. Their message was clearly an invitation to consolidate anti-war sentiment and action across generational lines, and underscored the folly and fatuousness of the few students who still strike out blindly against the institutions themselves in the false name of peace.

The radicals' arrogant contempt for their fellow-students' and teachers' wish to continue their academic work is totalitarian in expression and in effect. It constitutes an assault against both the academic community and the anti-war coalition itself. The Harvard Crimson warned accurately that "such random vandalism only diffuses and debilitates" the anti-war movement.

There is no doubt that the overwhelming majority of the nation's students, faculty members and university administrators oppose the continued American involvement in Vietnam. Such a united front can wield considerable political power, particularly in an election year. The moderate majority must not allow this unity to be shattered by the negativists. There is no contradiction hetween the undisrupted functioning of the universities and the fight for peace. The real contradiction is in opposing violence abroad while provoking it at home.

International Opinion

Kissinger's Secret Mission

The fact that Mr. Kissinger went to Moscow and that the Soviet leaders agreed to receive him shows that hoth sides are eager to save the summit talks. The fact that a joint communique was issued means that both sides convinced each other they did not intend to create a situation that would involve their respective prestige. Americans and Russians are equally interested in not canceling the meeting because the signing of a series of impressive agreements appears possible during the Nixon visit.

But the war in Vietnam might become the main topic and a solution might perhaps emerge from the conversations. Even more so, since some people are wondering whether Kissinger went only to Moscow during these four days. In fact, the communiqué says rather curiously that his sojourn in Russia took piace "between" April 20 and April 24 and not "from" the 20th to the 24th.

Can one infer from this that President Nixon's ruysterious traveling salesman did not spend four days in Moscow and had conversations with other personalities elsewhere, for example, with Le Duc Tho, one of Hanoi's representatives, in Paris or elsewhere? After all, nothing is impossible with that devil of a man Kissinger. -From France-Soir (Paris).

Initiative in Ulster

The measures taken in the past month to conciliate the Roman Catholic minority in Ulster make an impressive catalogue. The abolition of Stormont itself fulfilled a cherished Republican ambition, but one which six months ago seemed remote. Mr. Whitelaw has already released 143 internees and detainees. There has undoubtedly been a marked slackening in the tempo of army activity, and now there is talk of an amnesty for illegal marchers.

Yet this has not reduced violence. It has not elicited, even from the opposition parties, any sign of willingness to compromise. The effect on the Irish Republic, to which the initiative was also addressed, is typifled in yesterday's news of a £20 fine on the Provisional IRA's chief of staff for illegally possessing a round of ammunition. Add to Mr. Whitelaw's concessions all the radical reforms introduced by Stormont before It was offered as a ritual sacrifice, and the lack of response must seem remarkable.

The United States Policy Machine: I

By C. L. Sulzberger

ROME-The tests now being faced by U.S. foreign policy in Asia, Europe and superpower summitry add new dimensions to the debate on whether the machinery which formulates and applies this policy is effective.

During a recent visit to Washington—prior to the full impact of the current Vietnam crisis-I discussed this argument with leaders of both the executive and legislative branches. My final conclusion was that the system applied by the Nixon administration on the whole works.

The debate is primarily between certain senators and the White House. Secretary Rogers's State Department and Henry Kissinger's Netional Security Council epparatus are used as symbols. In reality it concerns the extent of presidential powers in foreign policy, which some congressional leaders would like to limit.

Insulation

Sen, Fulbright told me: "As a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee I object to the shift of responsibility from the Secretary of State to the National Security Council [Kissingerl. This insulates the makers of foreign policy from consultation with end information to the

"It is important that policles should be exposed to discussion and not just made by one or two fellows without any adversary discussion. You get the impression that what we have now is a kind of intuitive policy-making system. Consultation on basic policy is desirable. But the President is able to insulate policy from congressional interference. All chief executives regard Congress as a damned nuisance.'

However, Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, also a Democrat and also on the Foreign Relations Committee, told me: "I have great admiration for both Kissinger and Rogers. I think what has been happening is a decline in the influence of the State Department and an increase in the influence of the foreign affairs adviser of the President. The person closest to the President's elbow will elways have great influence.

Secretary Rogers has developed ideas of his own, for example on the Middle East. Navertheless the base of operations has shifted from the State Department to the White House, Presidents are the chief foreign policy makers of the United States but they seem to depend more on their advisers and staff than on the State Depart-

"A metamorphosis has taken place and it goes back probably to the time of Jack Kennedy, The close friendship of Nixon and Rogers makes it more possible for Rogers to rids along with criticism and to continue to function in his job. Nixon is extremely fortunate to have a man at his side with the brilliance of Kissinger. If Nizon has made any marks in this administration it is in the fir'd of foreign policy."

It is only fair to repeat that these remarks were made before the latest Vietnam crisis achieved

The views elicited from the executive branch were non-attributable but may be summarized as follows: Rogers seems to feel foreign policy is being successfully conducted and should not be analyzed by measuring the respective influence of those around Nixon, Each President conducts policy his own way. It is unimportant who gets credit for results if the system works.

The White House feels it is a trend in all modern governments to concentrate foreign policy in the office of the chief executive-personal attention to U.S. activities abroad and clearly values the help of the hard-working, intelligent Kissinger in coordinating the individual policy predilections of different bureaucratic factions. His role is to whip varying opinions into line and to keep delicate problems away from premature exposure in the press.

The Kissinger function not involved in secret negotiations -is to drive the diffuse U.S. bureaucracy against its inclinations, produce policy alternatives and allow the President to make his own precise decisions as problems arise. This seems to suit Nixon who doesn't want to be a rubber stamp for anyone-including the State Department,

McGovern a Tough One

By David S. Broder

BOSTON.—Sen. George Mc-Govern of South Dakota is now the subject of an "agenizing reappraisal" being made by the politicians and pundits of America. George Stanley McGovern is the latest in an uncomfortably long series of candidates whose characters, personalities and political strengths have been grossly misjudged by those of us in the business of reporting them. Amoog the questions we have not yet begun to answer are these: · How did a soft-voiced sometims minister and college teacher who balked at helping organized iabor achieve its main political goal—repeal of the right-to-work laws-emerge as the working man's candidate in this campaign? e How does the history PhD from Northwestern University and ington scene vie with George Wal-lace for the votes of those protesting the way those "pointyheaded liberals" have been running the government for the past generation? · How does this seemingly conventional Democrat-who, when last seen in presidential politics was holding up Hubert Humphrey's hand at the conclusion of the Chicago battle of 1968now appear as the architect of the potential overthrow of the party's traditional hierarchy? Has George McGovern changed figured wrong all along? In pursuit of answers to those questions, the reporters covering the Democratic presidential race clothes? Or did we have him are reading Robert Sam Anson's new biography of McCovern, which is competent but not par-ticularly insightful on questions like these; re-reading some of Mc-Govern's own speeches of the last four years, which carry more of the tone of anti-establishment protest than one remembered, and listening with increased respect to those who have been telling us for some time that we were misjudging and underestimating the man. A good place to start—and my own effort to re-examine my view of McGovern has hardly gotten beyond the start—is with that quality of toughness that so many of McGovern's old friends mention. It's not obvious in his speaking style, which even now is relaxed and almost detached in its quality; neither does it appear in the anecdotes ars about his relations with his staff, his colleagues in the Senate, or his opponents in this campaign.

Look at Politics

But it's there in his history, if one looks. Leave aside his World War II record, his economic struggle for education and support of a family. Just look at politics.

We've all written and known that Hubert Humphrey and Ed Muskie had to build the Democratic parties in their states before they could gain office, What we haven't said is that George McGovern did the same thing -under even more adverse circumstances in South Dakota Nineteen years ago.

Hubert Humphrey was already a sepator and Ed Musicle was just a year away from baing governor, McGovern guit his job teaching history at Dakota Wesleyan and with a family of six-went to work as the executive director of the Democratic party of South Dakota. His salary was $6,500 a year—which he had to raise from contributions himself.

Republicans, Anson's book tells us, controlled the governorship, both U.S. Senate seats, all 35 seats in the State Senate and all but two of the 75 seats in the State House. If ever there was barren ground for a Democrat, it was South Dakota in 1953.

There is still room for the Soviets to understand this," he added, and he seemed to imply that President Nixon might help

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat is reportedly going to Moscow before the summit in an effort to ge; a Soviet initiative for a Mideast settlement. But after an 80-minute discussion with Secretary of State William P. Rogers and other U.S. officials Eban exuded confidence that Mr. Nixon would stand firm against any secret deals.

Across the DMZ My first reaction to Anthony

Lewis's writings following the North Vietnamese invasion of South Vietnam across the DMZ was to consider his response robotistic—on the order of those of the Swedish protest marchers and doctrinaire individuals such as Sens. Kennedy and Fulbright. But I later decided that Mr. Lewis actually displayed a lot of imagination when he labeled his own country as "the world's most dangerous" though its neighbors-Canada and Mexico-don't seem to feel the need to erect defensive fortifications along thousands of miles of frontier. And I later realized, too, that

War Semantics

Vice-President Agnew employs curious logic in accusing the administration's critics of semantic sophistry on the issue of the war in Indochina (IHT April 14). The crossing of the DMZ by North Vietnamese troops may, as Agnew asserts, be an "invasion," and may differ from what the administration termed the "incursion" or "cross-border operation" by American troops in Cambodia during May and June of 1970. But to apply the administration's euphemisms to the Cambodian operation was and is semantic sophistry in itself; the same logic would force us to change our history books to talks about the "Normandy incursion" or the "cross-border operations of D-Day." Semanties are not the real issue: they are the prettifying tactics of an administration desperate to manipulate American public opinion. The real issue is that the administration bas been dishonest, promising a "secret plan to end the war" and delivering only a new and wider war above tree-top level. The ultimate in semantic sophistry is for the administration to contend, as it does implicitly, that it is better for Americans to be killed by a SAM than by an AK-47, and that it is better for Vietnamese to be killed by American bombs or by one another than by American

The reasoning of some of our so-called leaders absolutely defies logic, Take, for a prime example, Sen. Barry Goldwater's recent cerebral display on the floor of

Now hold on, Barry. Assuming the government of North Vietnam is at least as independent as the one in South Vietnam, which we all know is a haven for democracy and freedom of choice, and as-suming this government asked the Russians to come, then the Russians have as much business in Haiphong as the United States does in say, Danang or Saigon, DAVID C. ## Prosecution Makes New Bid To Use Angela Davis 'Diary'

SAN JOSE, Calif., April 27 (UEI). — Superior Court Judge Richard Arnason yesterday sent the Angela Davis jury home for the rest of the week and scheduled an all-day closed conference today on the prosecution's latest attempt to introduce a document "of critical importance" into evidence.

The document is an 18-page "diary" reportedly written by Miss Davis. It was found in the cell of black revolutionary George Jackson after he was killed at Sen Quentin Prison in an alleged escape attempt last year. .

Prosecutor Albert W. Harris jr. has called it crucial to his murder, kidnapping and conspiracy case against Miss Davis.

Judge Arnason earlier in the week upheld a defense motion to bar the document from evidence on grounds that it was "mmaterial" but said he might entertain a motion by Mr. Harris to present an edited version. Opposing Views

Mr. Harris said today that the editing had been done and "I believe we now have an admissible document. The defense objected strenuously.

The document has never been made public. Mr. Harris indicated in his opening statement that it contained references to a pas-sionate "physical involvement" between Miss Davis and Jackson and would support his contention that she helped plot the 1971 Marin County Courthouse fatal kidnappings in an effort to forca his release from prison.

Sadat Visits Top Welcome

Sees Russian Leaders 2d Time in 3 Months

By Thendore Shabad

MOSCOW, April 27 (NYT) .-President Anwar Sadat of Egypt came to Mescow today for the second time in three months to lay his case for a Middle East set-tlement hefore the Soviet leaders in preparation for their talks with President Nixon next month. The Egyptian visitor was welcomed at flag-bedecked Vnukovo Airport by Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and hy Mikhail A. Susior, one of the Communist party's na-tional secretaries. The general secretary, Leonid I. Brezhnev, was The military character of Mr. Sadat's lalest visit appeared to be emphasized by the fact that he was accompanied by Gen. Hisni Mubarak, commander of the Egyptian Air Force, and that the commander of the Soviet Air Force, Marshal Pavel S. Kutakhov, was among the welcomers. Requests for Weaponry This suggested that the Cairo leader might make requests for more weaponry beyond the arms supplied to him by the Soviet Union on his last visit, in early February, Total Soviet arms aid to Egypt was recently put by Cairo at $5 billion. A major purpose of Mr. Sadat's latest trip, however, is believed to be a wide-ranging discussion of the siluation in the Middle East, which is bound to be one of the topics of conversation be-tween President Nixon and the Soviet leaders.

Mr. Sadat is understood to have expressed concern in Cairo that the renewed heavy fighting in South Vietnam and American bombings of the North might overshadow the Middle East issue on the agenda of the U.S.-Soviet talks. He is expected to impress the Kremlin with the need for giving the Arab-Israell issue a high priority.

The Egyptian president's visit to the Soviet Union comes at a time when several new elements have entered the Middle East

One is the proposed visit of Premier Golda Meir of Israel to Romania, which, though a nominal member of the Soviet bloc, has been conducting a virtually independent foreign policy for some years.

Possible Solution

Another new element is the recent proposal of King Hussein of Jordan to federate the two banks of the Jordan River under his rule, Mr. Sadat has said the plan is part of a campaign to sow confusion in the Arab camp and has severed relations with Jordan There has been speculation that President Nixon may try to interest the Soviet Union in King Hussein's olan as a possible solution of the deadlocked Middle East situation, at least as far as Jordan is concerned.

The Egyptian leader is expected to remain in Moscow two or three days. It was not known whether he might meet Gunnar V. Jarring, the Swedish ambassador to Moscow, who is about to resume his United Nations-sponsored efforts to achieve an Arab-

Pilots Plan Strike; Go-Slow in London

LONDON, April 27 (UP1).-I'vo more of Britain's key transportation services were threatened with disruption today.

Pilots for the state-owned British European Airways (BEA), which runs most internal British services and those to Europe, threatened an ali-out strike.

Union members on the London subway system, which carries millions of passengers daily, threatened a "work to rule" protest unless their full wage demands are met by May 8.

A similar go-slow on the nation's rails was in cold storage until May 7, by court order. BEA fired 17 pilots yesterday and today for refusing to make training flights on a new aircraft. The pilots' union-the British Airline Pilots Association BALPA)-had ordered its memhers not to make the flights until a new wage agreement was Strike Action

BALPA was assembling its executive for an emergency meeting to consider strike actioo.

London's subway men demanded a 16 percent pay hike. Transport officials offered to match whatever settlement is made by the railways. The subway men rejected this, and said they would start a go-slow May 8 which would be "worse than the southern region" unless their claim is met in full.

The southern region of Brit-ain's railways was the hardest hit in a two-week go-slow which entered a "cooling-off" period Monday, Britain's new National Industrial Relations Court ordered the 14-day pause to allow railway unions and the state-owned railways to settle the pay dispute.

Rail Strike Ends In Japan, too Late For Commuters

TOKYO, April 27 (Reuters).— Japan's national railroad strike ended tonight, too late to ease a nightmare day for commuters, who had faced bus, ferry and taxi stoppages, as well as the rail disruption.

Private and state rall employees called a 48-hour strike loday to back their pay claims, but the 200,000 private railroad workers quickly accepted a compromise offer, so easing the evening rush hour in Tokyo, where they run the suhway. The 320,000 state railroad eutployees held out for several hours but finally settled on similar terms. By then, some 12 million commuters had tackled a long walk home. Rail-operated bus and ferry crews had also stopped work and partial weikout by taxi drivers barred alternative routes for city Major ports were also paralyzed by the start of a 96-hour dock strike, coinciding with a protact-

The designabout to descend on the ers have evidently profited from studies of incidents at dance halls, stadiums and other structures where fires or stempedes led to mass tragedy. The plastic skin is described as very tough and resistant.

> The Modulobul's season will begin Friday, May 5, with a "free jazz" concert by the Frank Wright Quartet, This will be followed by a program of con-temporary electronic music May 6, the Celestial Communications Orchestra on May 11, and Pop Celtique on May 12.

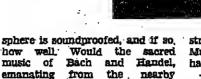

The visual part of each concert, synchronized with the music, will be produced by Le Théâtre de Lumière, directed by J.C. Lardy. The promoters explain that their projects are not to be confused with the conventional son et lumière spectacles. What they seek is not to "illustrate" the music but "to achieve a closer collaboration among the elements of music, gesture, speech and image."

They envision an "orchestra of light" in which the performers produce "notes of light" to complement the music for the eye. Modulohul's high-flying imagery feils, however, to answer the question of whether their hemi-

The film begins with a lam-

Jane Fonda and Yves Montand are engaged. Now a story-preferably a love story-is required and Godard invents a fable about a Gallic director married to an American radio correspondent. They have ecstatically experienced the stu-dent riots of 1968 together and this has left them with a tron-

This strong-armed move meets with strenuous objections from the Communist-dominated union. The three-cornered struggle is depicted with the captured capi-talist, the union delegate and the independent revolutionaries expressing their views. The manufacturer is quite roughly handled by his captors, but, it is explain-ed, he has imposed bumiliating restrictions on his workers who are underpaid and forced to toti

It is like that of many other "intellectuals" who were similarly derailed emotionally by the events of May, 1968, and now that "tout va bien" again on the surface are at a loss as to what road to take. The mutual despondence of the star pair seems due to wreck their shallow marriage. the thwarted movie maker's woes

Though his wistful sighs for the good old days of 1968 may strike one as sentimental and sophomoric, Godard has organized what he has to say neatly in terms of camera-in a series of arresting frames. He is master of the graphic anapshot and succeeds in keeping the interspersed interviews from becoming topbeavy harangues.

His controversial film is quick with brilliant technique and his portrait of what threatens to be another lost generation is con-stantly absorbing and provocative.

Godard, seriously injured in a motorcycle accident last summer and still depending on a cane to get about, must return to the hospital for a second operation shortly. After that, he reports, he will edit the material he shot in Palestine before he began work on "Tout Va Bien."

"I intend to frame the Palestime footage as a lesson on how a his-toric film ahould be made today," he said. "The pompous approach coverage are both outdated. A revision of presentation method is required. That is the job I have "The Last Picture Show" (at the Vendôme and the Elyses-Lincoln I in English) is the 190ond feature of Peter Beguage vitch, who made "Targets" ind an interesting documentary on the directorial career of Jihn Ford. Bogdanovitch's own diretorial career progresses promisingly with his vivid study of a small Texas town falling into decay during the 1950s. Both facomy setting and the co of the dramatis personae are treated with a realistic flair that is remarkably sustained throughout. We have bere a valuable piece of authentic Americani, a motion picture admirably acted and intelligently composed and one that benefits directorally from Bogdanovitch's exacting examination of Ford's methods in character delineation.

"Continental Circus" (at the Monte Carlo) is a deft documentary about motorcycle races and racers, disclosing the life of the participants when off the hot rots and suggesting the threat of sucden death that hovers over them. It is perhaps a bit special and for those not fans of the sport a trifle too long, but it is tack nically excellent.

According to Clive Barnes, the play, about a "warm; nice lady with a tart tongue" and the "pregnant and very unpleasant" young woman who is sent to her Cape Cod: guest house for the summer, is "not very interesting, its writing is obvious and its characterization so one-dimensional that it could make a cube seem like a

The United States, as part of his arrangement, is making a urrency drawing in sterling quivalent to 200 million special lrawing rights (SDRs), or about

The arrangement was made necessary by the fact that IMF. ules prevent the organization's -accepting repayments in dollars it the time because its dollar quota is full.

The IMF said that Britain will nse the currencies of several ieutsche marks. Dutch guilders, Belgian francs, Japanese yen, trian schillings and Canadian ioliars for the repayments, which will discharge in full the outstanding British borrowings from the fund in 1969 and 1970.

All the transactions were stated by the fund in terms of units of TDES; each of which is worth 10857...
In London, the government said the repayment would consist of $1.031 hillion (950 million SDRs) and $318 million (200 million SDRs) in charges previously paid in sterling. The latter part of the repayment was described as repurchase of the sterling.

Britain said about one-third of the total transactions will be made from its own holding of SDRs.

There had been several reports during negotiations over the repayment that the U.S. was pressing Britain to use its own SDEs to pay back nearly two-hirds of the debt, while Britain proposed a figure of only onehird. If the reports were Britain got its way.

The amount of SDRs used in he repayment was said to be important for Britain because 3DRs are backed by gold. Hence, inlike foreign currency reserves. hey would not be subject to a elative decline in value in the vent of a gold revaluation. The repayment will mean that kritain is free for the first time ince May, 1964, of official short in medium-term debt.

The department said the March deficit of $584.3 million was down from February's $597.6 - million deficit. But for the first three months of the year the deficit exceeded the previous largest quarterly shortfall by about $178

It also compared with a $1.32 billion deficit in the final quarter of 1971.

Measured on an adjusted balance-of-payments basis, the de-partment said, the trade deficit widened to $1.64 billion in the first quarter from $1.53 billion in the fourth 1971 quarter.

Exports rose 2.2 percent in March to $3.89 billion and imports increased 1.8 percent to $4.48 billion.

The Commerce Department said exports rose about 9 percent in the first quarter to an annual rate of $47.67 billion from $43.56 billion in 1971 as a whole.

Imports increased by 13 percent to a $53.67-billion annual rate from $45.8 billion in 1971.

The rise in both exports and imports during March was probably dne to the resumption of activity at West Coast ports following the dock strike aettlement. But the department said it did not have adequate information to enable it to specifically measure the influence of the strike on the statistics. The administration has repeatedly stressed that a continuing negative balance of trade was expected following the Dec, 18 International currency accord and warned the figures could get worse before they get better.

This is because devaluations traditionally exercise a perverse impact on export and import returns in the short run as existing import contracts cost more in toreign-exchange terms while export contracts give a lower exchange return.

Canadian Capital Outlays Rise Seen

Capital spending this year should exceed pre-sent intentions "by a fairly wide margin," the Bank of Montreal says in its monthly business review. Recently released estimates of capital investment intentions indicated an increase of only 4.9 percent from 1971, with little actual growth if one assumes a 4 percent price rise, the review says. However, the rapid expansion of corporate profits in 1971 and the strong pace of consumer spending have provided new grounds for optimism, and, judging by recent indicators. some upward revisions of investment plans may already have occurred, the bank says

By Alan Truscott

A pair of optimists might reach slam on this deal by a sequence similar to the one shown in the diagram.

South opens one no-trump with a hand that would be a minimum for some players and a sub-minimum for others. North asks for information about his partner's hand with a Stayman bid.

When South first denles 2 major and then fails to support spades, North knows he must have a doubleton spade and three hearts. His raise of four diamonds to five shows at least four-card support, but also implies a minimum.

North is not deterred, however. After a couple of cue-bids he takes the plunge into seven diamonds.

With a red suit lead, South has a good chance to make 13 tricks without a club finesse by ruffing two hearts in the dummy, hoping for six trump tricks, six spade tricks and the club ace.

However if the opening lead is a spade, as it might well be, this plan is difficult to execute, Now South is an entry short. If, for example, he wins with the spade king, ruffs a heart, cashes two high diamonds and uses the club ace as an entry to ruff another heart, he is stuck in the dummy and cannot return to draw the missing trump.

The obvious play after a spade lead is to lead to the diamond ace and take a club finesse. If this wins, the declarer can draw the remaining trumps with a chance of surviving against a 4-1 spade break.

There is a slightly better play as the cards lie. South should ruff a heart at the second trick and cash the ace-queen of dia-monds. Since the diamond jack falls doubleton, this works.

South can ruff another heart and return to his hand with the club ace to pull the last trump. If the diamond jack does not fall doubleton, South pulls the last trump at once, runs the spades and falls beck on the club finesse for his 13th trick.

THE DUEL:

De Gaulle and Pompidou -

By Philippe Alexandre. Translated from the French by Elaine P. Halperin. Houghton Mifflin. 360 pp. $7.95.

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

A Say so, I'm inclined to think that Charles de Gaulle, the president of France that was, and Georges Pompidou, the president of France that is, would not mind this book by Philippe Alexandre, a French journalist, on their close, intricate and sometimes difficult relationship. It was a relationship in which a neophyte subordinate grew sufficiently in power to supplant the man who had chosen him.

I don't mean that the men would necessarily have agreed with the picture of themselves they find in the book or with the facts or with the way the author has arrayed them. But I think they would not have been hostile to his conception and treatment of their twin destiny. He has stripped the story of trivialities and pettiness, removed it from the realm of gossip and made the clash between the two an agonizing and believable one. He has revealed their character in the setting of history and thus added to the stature of his pro-tagonists and to the historian himself. Is the story true? I think it is, but he has made it psychologically true, which is even better.

It has classic lineaments. The vounger man a surrogate son, is nurtured by the older man and taught his skills. At first the father/teacher hails his disciple for his selflessness and loyalty, then comes to suspect him and finally to distrust him. The younger man growing in strength and wisdom bides his time until he slips into the seat from which the older man has fallen. It is the world's oldest story.

came to the attention of the general, right after World War II, he was a nobody and had nothing going for him, But he had desirable virtues: he was methodical, efficient, patient, imperturbable and never gave the general a bad time. And when he first met the great man he was not ambitious. He had not even thought seriously about politics. As one commentator said of him later: "He had nothing in his hands, nothing in his pockets." He performed naturally and well the tasks assigned to him and in the process discovered talents he never knew existed: a skill in handling finances, an ability to manage and run a polltical campaign, a good adminis-trative streak. When De Gaulle left politics in 1946 out of disgust with French parliamentary procedures, Pompidou retired as well, But circumstances kept them in touch. Pompidou accepted a postwith the Rothschild bank; De

Thus he was both independent of and close to De Gaulle. And since he had taken no part-in the intramural jockeying for power, he had no firm enemies. When, in the Algerian crisis, De LTHOUGH it may be rash to Gaulle was called back and set about changing the structure of the French republic, Pompiden came back as premier and in a sense as his right-hand man. But all knew that power resided in De Gaulle. Without him, none of them would have been where they were.

In his sketch of the general Mr. Alexandre has outdone himself, creating a man at once unique, crochety, moody, mercurial, demanding and imperial light years away from the calm stoical, confident figure we assume from the standard photo-graphs and sketches. He had the sense of destiny and the proconsular attitude of a Douglas Mac-Arthur, the narrow coofidence of the first Henry Ford and an ambivalent attitude to the French people that one usually finds only in the family.

There is something of high comedy in his pretense of alociness to politics on the one hand and his ward-boss scrutiny of it on the other. He could perform the most ungracious act in the name of France, eviscerate a cclleague in the name of duty, and summon up the words "treachery" and "traitor" when a policy of his falled. He was always the injured party. Men in his cabinet handed in their resignations every day, which he brushed aside with some surprise. Couldn't they see it was all done for France?

But with the years, the general began to show his age. It took much longer to reach a decision, He became moody and uncertain in his feelings. He was surprised by the inflation, by the student riots, by the labor strikes, And he began to lose his hold on his countrymen. Watching from the sidelines after having been let go as premier, Pompidou began preparing himself for the inevitable day. In a statement be made in Italy while on a visit there, he remarked reasonably that when the general stepped down, he would naturally be a candidate for his office. It was the shrewdest political move of his career. For it at once gave the people of France as well as the Gaullists an option for the continuance of Gaullism without De Gaulle: Suddenly the void that threatened with the removal of De Gaulle proved to be a mirage. It is uncertain whether the general ever forgave Pompidou for making this statement.
In Elaine Halperin's easy and uncluttered translation, the writing is very Gallic impressionistic. full of delicate touches. One thing is said and five suggested. The background is skimpy; those not easily at home in recent French ing questions that go unanswered. But it is not intended as a book of political substance, in that regard: whether a policy or course of action worked or not. It is, as I have said, a study of character. That these are true historic figures only adds to the novelistic richness of the book.

Mr. Lask is a New York Times book reviewer.

A capacity crowd of 17,505 in The Forum, having given the Lakers a standing ovation when they were introduced, started to disperse midway through the fourth quarter and the game ended before 15,000 empty seats.

The result wiped out the homecourt advantage the Lakers had earned by winning a record num-ber of games, 69, during the regular sesson, 21 more than the Knicks won.

The second game is scheduled for here Sunday afternoon. Then the scene shifts to New York on Wednesday and Friday nights. Bill Bradley, with 29 points, was the game's high scorer and hottest shooter. He didn't miss until the second half, and wound up with 11 for 12.

But Jerry Lucas, the key to Knick strategy, was just as spec-tacular. He had to nullify Wilt Chamberlain's size by hitting from long range, and hit he did. He Dave DeBusschare, who had 18 rebounds, only one less than Chamberlain, scored 19 points. Phil Jackson, playing the last six minutes of the first half, hit four of six and helped the Knicks break away.

Earl Monroe hit some important shots early, then got into foul trouble, and Dean Meminger played 2 magnificent 28 minutes in his place, even though he scored only 1 point.

Only Walt Frazier didn't shoot well for the Knicks, but he did plenty of other things. He had II assists and 12 rebounds, and held Jerry West to 12 points. West made only three baskets in 15 attempts.

By the time the game had ended, it was easy to forget that the Lakers had started out just as hot as the Knicks. They also made thair first four shots and eight of their first 10, and led by 19-16 after only 4 1/2 minutes.

A Seventh-Inning Stretch in Baseball-Spanish-Style

By Jack Monet BARCELONA, (IHT)—It was a seventh-inning stretch—

Along the third-base line, 18-year-old Conception Pou. who on other Sundays is a first baseman for a women's team, stood with her hand poised above a well-marked scorecard.

At shortstop, Roberto Sabin, a 32-year-old Cuban exile, pawed the dirt with his spikes.
In nearby spartment buildings, a few figures who had been elbowing windowsills disappeared, perhaps in search of a cool refreshing beer.

For in left field were the causes of the interruption of play—a shepherd and two dogs leading a flock of sheep to other pastures. The game was a match of the Spanish Baseball Federation, pitting the Picaderos of Barcelona, the league-leaders in Catalonia this season and last, against the Viladecans, on a sandlot in Viladecans, a suburb of Barcelona.

The Picaderos won easily, 6-1, behind the overhand fastballs and occasional aidearm deliveries of righthander Manuel Garcia.

"It's rough to beat the Picaderos," said Carlos Perez de Rozas, who had made the journey from Barcelons along with his wife and some folding chairs to see the action. They were No. 2 in Spain last year, losing in our equivalent of the World Series to the Madrid

"That's Madrid Baseball Club, mind you, not Real Madrid." Pin Stripes

The Picaderos, uniformed in pin stripes and using major-league equipment, reminded an observer of a good neighborhood team in America with their base running, infield chatter and errors. And to the U.S. observer, who cannot dribble a soccer ball with his left foot or head it, let alone fill out a scorecard, it was an impressive performance. The field had a batting cage,

Game Terminology Game terminology is hasi-cally English, in a disconcerting Spanish framework, "Hey, two out," the third-base coach reminds men on base. There are 20 first-division teams in the Ligue Cataluna, 15 in Madrid, and several each in Valencia, Pampiona and Blibao. According to Perez, the game came to Spein in the mid-1920s—from Cuba and Venezuela rather than the United States.

We know of Baby Ruth and the fellow that Gary Cooper played in the movie, Lou Gehrlg," said Perez. "And Al Lopez is known because of his Spanish name. We've also heard of Joe Dillaggio and Ted Williams, a great pitcher. wasn't he?"

The Latin Americans are the best players in Spain, and the federation imposes a limit of four to a team. A team that wants to use a Latin American pitcher has to pay the federation 75,000 pesetas ($12,500), and so there are no Latin American pitchers. A few Americans play for teams in Barcelona and Madrid.

The federation is supported by "aficionados de beisbol." Perez said, Only the umpires are paid. They get about 400 but they weren't seen brushing the plate once.

After the game, the players left the field quickly. There was a corrida in the aiternoon

Only One Year to Live

By Richard Kisonak

LEWISTON, Maine (AP).—I am scheduled to die this year. For several months a mysterious, fatal disease, the name of which I can barely pronounce, bas quietly and determinedly heen waging a hellish war on my muscular system. It will continue to do this, the doctor says, until I am paralyzed-and die. I found out about it last November.

It is a very rare disease called amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, and it results in degeneration and hardening of portions of the spinal cord. In time this brings on extreme weakness and, finally, paralysis and death. Many years ago the same disease took the life of Lou Gehrig, the famous New York Yankee baseball hitter. It is often called Lou Gehrig's disease. The medical profession doesn't know what causes it.

I have agreed to put my feelings down on paper because of the possibility that what I have to say might be of some help in the future to somebody else. My message, for what it is worth, is that I have heen able to adjust mentally to a point where I am able to cope so far with this ewful thing that is pulling me down.

I am watching myself die a hit more every week. When I chaoge clothes, when I hathe, when I shave and wheo I help my wife with the supper dishes. The almost constant twitching of my leg and arm muscles won't let me forget what is happening to me.

For almost 19 years I was a reporter for the Lewiston Daily Sun. The first signs that something was terribly wrong showed up about the middle of last year. I was losing weight, and also I began having a small speech problem, There was a slight slurring of some words when I spoke. At first it didn't concern me too much, as I figured it was caused by my dentures. I had the dentures re-aligned—hut the speech problem grew steadily worse.

"It could be nerves, try to relax," the doctor told me. I told myself to relax. But the slurring continued. Also, I began to notice that the simple act of swallowing food was sometimes a chore. And the loss of weight was continuing.

This is another symptom of the disease. Summer veot and autumn came and things were no better. Because of the speech problem, I was intentionally avoiding people. Pollowing a thorough examination, a specialist I went to see smiled and said he could find nothing wrong with me He was 90 percent certain. he added that my speech and tongue problem was caused by an emotional thing. 'Are you bappy with your work? Do Negative on both counts, I insisted. He insisted that all my signs were normal but that, if I wished, he'd arrange for me to be examined by a specialist in neurology. Make an appointment, I said, and I went home wondering if I were beginning to lose some marbles upstairs.

The appointment was on Nov. 11 last year, Armistice Day. The neurologist was very late. Later I was to wish that he hadn't shown up at all

I remember that visit vividly. We were in a sice room and the specialist, a bland look masking his features, signalled that the examination was over. He said, "Get dressed, then get your wife.

Moments later Beverly and I sat before him side by side on hard chairs, waiting. The specialist a young man, fingered a paper on his desk for what seemed like an eternity. Then he turned to Beverly and said, "Your husband has a fatal

"He has all the symptoms," the specialist said to Beverly. He was explaining that it wasn't a contagious disease. And it wasn't a hereditary disease. Beverly came across with the question that I didn't dare ask. How long did I have to live? The specialist answered quickly, hluntly. "One year-if he's lucky."

I got up, walked singgishly to the wall and slammed my fist hard against it. "I know how he feels," the specialist said. Don't bother running to other doctors, boping for another diagnosis, the specialist was telling my wife. It would be a waste of time and money. I should go home and enjoy what time I have left. I had an urge to walk over to his desk and break his cose with my fist.

We told the children the same night. Richard is 17, and Janis, 15, and Wayne, They are all still at school. called them to the kitchen before supper and told them what the specialist had said. When we'd finished, they cried.

Four days later, at a hospital in Lewiston, tests confirmed the diagnosis, confirmation was no surpris At home a few days later, a friend dropped by and asked, "How does it feel

The first nights bring nightmares, In my dreams I die in weird, color-splashed ways. I attend my own funeral—twice. In the morning I am immediately reminded that I am dying. I am unable at first to read the obituary page in the morning Dewspaper.

I made up my mind to live one day at a time, enjoying life to the fullest, and soon I was doing just that. A wonderful understanding wife and children make it possible. We don't mention the disease much any more and life around the house has returned to near normal. The major difference, on the surface, is that I'm no longer working.

Christmas was our best ever. Lots of laughing meeting friends, good food, gifts.

That night I had a good cry when the children were in bed and I was alone. It was my last Christmas with my family. I cried hard, and I am not ashamed to

In January my weight stabilized at about 140 pounds. A year earlier it was around I felt pretty good and Bev and I flew to Jamaics for a week of fun in the sun. Back home the February cold began to eat into my bones and I found myself tiring more easily. One morning while shaving I noticed that some of the strength in my fingers was gone, And the leg muscles were starting to complain regularly. Little reminders.

I am not what you'd call a deeply religious man. While I don't attend church on a regular basis, I do believe in God. As to a new life after death on earth, I'll just have to walt and see. pray in the privacy of my home. It would be most hypocritical now for me to suddenly rush to church and pretend that I am something which I'm not.

I am 42 years old, and I don't want to die. I want to stay with my wife and children,
